

Leadership center for educational

central office reunion

february 8, 2008

richard nixon library, yorba linda, ca

Over the last 9 years, more than 400 district office leaders have participated in the summer colloquium and our central office reunion. Former participants have indicated that their experience at UCLA provided them exposure to the latest research in the field of educational leadership, increased their professional skills and expanded their network of colleagues. In addition, they are equipped with new strategies and skills to influence and accelerate change. The program highlight for this reunion is a full day with John Antonetti. This event is being sponsored by the College Board.

Sign up early!

This event is designed for alumni of the Central Office Colloquium. We'd like to invite each alumni to bring two additional Central Office guests.

There will be an early bird rate of $160 for those registering by December 15, 2007.

After December 15, the regular registration fee will increase to $185. Lunch will be provided.

Richard Elmore states, "The purpose of leadership is the improvement of instructional practice and performance, regardless of role." Reform requires at least two things: the capacity to do the right work and the development of internal accountability. Join your central office colleagues and attend this one day event focused on leadership for effective schools, effective teaching and effective learning.

The Center for Educational Leadership invites you to spend a day with other district office leaders focusing on the leadership needed for effective schools, effective teaching and effective learning.

John Antonetti was a featured speaker at the July, 2007 Central Office Colloquium. He brought current research to the participants and his uncompromising belief that leadership that improves student learning is the key to meaningful reform. When the day ended the participants asked for another exciting day of learning with John. His use of parables and humor to make his points is a technique you too will appreciate.

John has worked with three districts that won the nationally recognized Broad Prize for Urban Education. During this day together, John will identify the critical challenges that school and district leaders must confront and overcome if they are to achieve and maintain a high performing organization.

You are invited to this special day of learning with your central office colleagues as we explore what it really means for district office leaders to lead for instructional improvement.
